1:250 000 Scale Geological Maps

Geological Maps of the UK and Continental Shelf Areas (UTM Series)

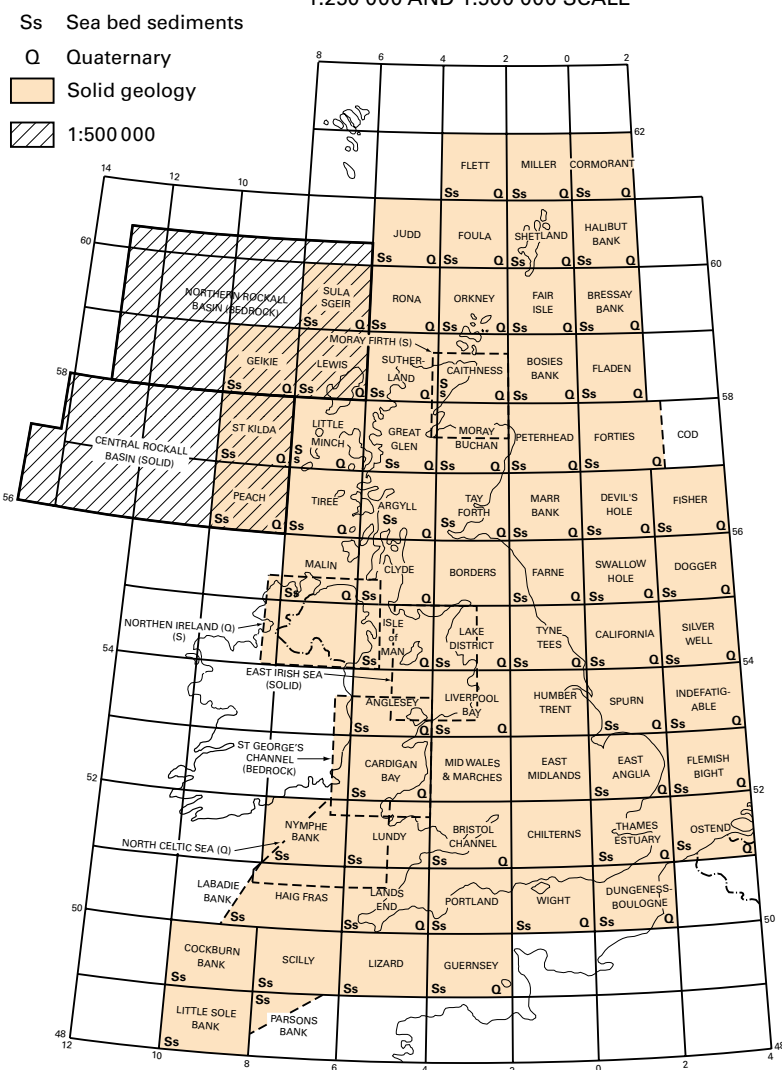

Maps in this series have normally been produced in three distinct editions: Solid (Bedrock) geology (S), Quaternary geology (Q) and Sea-bed sediments (Ss). Additionally, for some area Holocene deposits are shown in place of Quaternary deposits: the maps are indicated accordingly. Each version is normally produced as a separate map, although sea-bed sediments and Quaternary geology (or sea-bed sediments and solid geology), may be shown together on one printed map. Other data may be displayed in figurative form. The maps are available flat or folded.

The UTM Series (Universal Transverse Mercator projection) maps cover an area of 1deg. of latitude by 2deg. of longitude. Sheets are indexed by their south-west corner co-ordinates: coverage is shown in the index map.

Note: Quaternary geology maps provide information for offshore areas only: onshore territory is not covered unless otherwise noted.

Gravity and magnetic maps also based on the UTM grid (and at various scales) are listed in the Specialist Publications section of this catalogue.

Specialist publications

Many books, reports and maps produced by the BGS fall into the 'specialist' category, that is, publications aimed at geologists, mining and civil engineers, planners and other professional users of detailed geoscience information and data.

This section of the catalogue is organised thematically; and includes large scale (greater than 1:25 000 scale) geological maps, geochemical, minerals, hydrogeological and geophysical maps, books and reports.

Large Scale Geological Maps

For over 150 years primary geological mapping has been undertaken at a large scale, normally 1:10 000 or the earlier 1:10 560 scale. There is almost complete large-scale map coverage of the UK, and some areas have multiple maps with a range of survey and publication dates. These maps have been prepared as Bedrock, or Bedrock geology and Superficial deposits versions (or the earlier Solid or Solid and Drift versions). 'Geologists' Standards' are derived from the field maps and are normally available for purchase as digitally produced print-on-demand copies.
